Glacial Action Exposed the Veins of Western Ontarió.

N PAYING QUANTITIES IN THIS DIS TRICT-SMALL LOTS HAVE BEEN , FOUND IN GRAVEL DEPOSITS.

There is a deal of speculation as to the origin of the placer gold of the Klondyke and Cape Nome. Most reliable and scientific authority concluded that the glacial period was largely responsible for the deposition of the gold in the sands and gravels, but the same glaciers which moved over the vast northern territory in their process to the sea and carried with them rocks, sand, gravel, metal and all that lay in their path, depositing as they moved, great boulders and tons of rock; debris and gravel, and gold torn or swept from the lodes over which they passed, also buried the lones to various depths. Blind ledges must be sought for in Maska. Many of the great min of Idaho, Montana, Utah and Colorada were covered ledges with nothing to indicate time existence on the surface before their oiscovery, and even where burren sprints has cropped on the surfety by www.soften found rich gold bestring co-

The property is favorably situated, being only 32 miles from Rat Portage, and is accessable by uninterrupted navigation from that point. A working shaft is now being put down. and is now at the 90 foot level, which it is proposed to continue to a depth of 240 feet on vein No. 2, at the point at which it was cross cut by the diamond drill. It is the intention of the company to install a full complement of machinery, and to erect a stamp mill with a cyanide or chlorination system for treating the concentrates attached as quickly as possible, and it will not be long before the mine will be a dividend payer.

The company is capitalized at $151;-000, $50,000 of which have been placed in the treasury for working purposes. There are no liabilities. It is a close corporation, the stock of the company having never been placed on the matset and none of which is at present for sale. different. Here the original mountains or upheavals have been ground off by glaciers, and the debritus carried away, leaving the entire country, generally speaking, bare of all covering. In this gigantic denudation and grinding off of the rock, everywhere visible, signs of placer on a scale sufficient to pay for working have been located. Indeed, there has been no intelligent effort directed toward that end. The gold in the veins exposed throughout Ontario must have gone somewhere in the glacial drift. But where? That is the question. It may be in the bottom of the numerous deep lakes, or it may be deposited in the gravel beds scattered over Minnesota and the Dakotas. The recent excitement regarding placer gold on the Sisseton Indian reservation in South Dakoba was due to a small Jot of placer gold being found in a gravel deposit, and the writer succeeded in panning a little gold from a creek bed at Gang in the same State in 1878.

One of the reports of the Ontario bureau of mines states that the most favorable placer gold would be on the Little Turtle river, in the Seine River district, but so far as THE MINER is advised, no systematic effort has been made to test that field. Another probable field for placer gold is on the Rat Root river, south of Rainy Lake City, in Minnesota. Indeed placer gold was obtained there about four years ago by an old trapper, but he refused to divulge the location. He, however, brought some to that town that showed particles of gold under a glass.

Some day some one may locate the hiding place of the gold loosened from its original resting place by nature's stamp mill during the glacial age, but. meantime, the work of extracting the precious metal from its rocky casement will go on in this region in everincreasing volume. The output of nearly half a million dollars last year from Lake of the Woods region should be increased four fold this year, and we hope and believe that gold production here will yet rival the Cripple Creek region, which produced $1,000. 000 in June, besides an output by private corporations which refuse to divulge the exact amount of their earnings.

· History, it is said, repeats itself, and the work now going on all over these gold fields will soon produce gold in tention of the whole world. It will be the that is bringing the name of the a permanent production, too, and not bake et to Wolses By to the of the effervescent character common to all placer ground, that sooner or later ceases to be productive.

A Story of a German Baron and an American Woman.

Back in Berlin the name of Max Hertzer had been of some account. He was, to begin with a Hertzer, which meant much. As a matter of his sisters bad starved themselves for his conjugission and maintenance-and he was handsome, even for a German officer. Unfortunately for him he sang the love songs of his country, and they are quite the most maving love songs in the world. They move the singers as well as the listeners. They moved Hertzer, and on one night in particular when he was bidden to the house of a pertain titled lady he was so lifted out of himself by the charm of his music. that he proposed to an American girl who was present and to his startled themay was accepted

It was a misfortune, for he was not in sympathy with the American point of view; he did not like the insistence and intellectual arrogance of American women, and he had quite made up hismind to marry a senseless and well born little fraulein who did network and went to kaffer klatsches.' He almost loved her, she was so nondescript, and would be well content to make a made me ridiculous. Lam no clown to harmless background of herself for his benefic. Agong the many pleasing and beterodox friends who visited the Hertzers was a newspaper man of a whimsical turn of mind. He had been the rerivient on a certain occasion of a pack of playing cards in which each club, spage, heart or diamond was represented by scarlet or black devils, and the design upon the backs of the cards, was a writhing, twisting inferno of the same groresque little creatures.

He looked at these long and appreclatively, did the newspaper man, and he was seized with an idea. This ideawas the outcome of his observations. He had noticed that there was a look of extreme weariness in the eyes of the amiable Madam Hertzer and that she walked more slowly than she used, and her selections at the piano, which had once been noted for their length, were now brief and lacking in spirit. In short, the brave spirit of Madain Hertzer drooped under many burdens. So the newspaper man entered upon the making of a collection, assisted by the energetic and talented children of the baron. Little black devils were gath: ered from every part of the house, heads were torp from letters that the fascinating imps might be preserved. leaves were rent from books, and even a pocket handkerchief done in a procession of dancing imps in indelible ink was taken in charge.

The practical friend sent these to-a certain much illustrated comic weekly and anxiously awaited the results. The family was of the opinion that there would be no results. The baron was in a state of peaceful ignorance.

But the results were almost dramatic. The comic weekly was amused. and it is not easy to amuse a comic weekly. It wanted a series, indefinitely continued, of little black devils illustrating current events.

The officious friend carried the good news to Baron von Hertzer.

"Sir." stormed the baron, "you have exceeded your privileges. You have fillip and kick while the people laugh. Will you have the great goodness to rew many tears from the stranger to whom you have

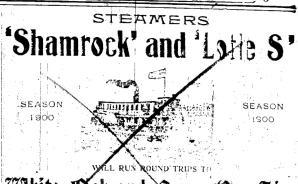

The newspaper man was obdurate.

"Ye r will be destinguished in a few minutes" he said "I'm going to set my afaria clock - i I can wake up at ws appling about the proper moment and see the fun-No I'll not write for the imps. I'vealready sold part of them. The check will reach you in a few days. And you must be about those illustrations of current happenings. "Am I to be at the back and call of these men whom I have never seen?"

"It is not nécessary to see them in order to be at their beck and call."

The baron considered all Americans stupld; but he regarded this one as "It is just as well," said his friends purricularly so, especially when he "Really, you know, it is all found that his family was leagued with the perverse man to justed upon They felt that he was as good as the making of the little devils. It was dull in America. Well, New York wasn't so bad perhaps, but the baron worked on. The first few days other towns-bah! There wasn't a true city among them. It didn't count for a man to be anybody. No one paid any attention to Max because he was a iterizer. It made him bitter. He had a little summer house built in the yard back of the house where they lived and smoked his pipe there and dreamed of Berlin. Also he planted some flowers and some little trees. He liked these and paid much attention to them. He studied a great deal-military tactics and botany. But he neglected to provide the daily bread. No one could blame him for it. It was an oversight on his part. His wife taught music. She gave private lessons and class lesas has secured; As ding by A. sons, and she sometimes performed at minions, made adorable little black concerts. Her peculiar treatment of the "Fifth Symphony" did not militate against her in America. In course of the long and busy years four children were born to the Hertzers, but still the burden of the brend winning devolved upon madam. She never complained. It was the greatest pleasure in the world for her to return home and find the baron sitting shere. She never saw a man so handsome, And he was always kind.' Sometimes he found odd jobs to do-bookkeeping or work in a railroad office or book criticism. He was willing but not eager to work. Time was apt to hange heavily on his hands. And so it became his habit to amuse himself in a peculiar way-namely, by the making of little black devils. He made them on anything that chanced to be handy -an envelope, a scrap of paper, a playing card or a book margin. He represented them in every imaginable antic. He gave them a thousand subtle individualities. His mind appeared to be beset by them. Many of his acquaintances had wondered in the course of their intercourse with him what it was that filled that large, handsome head. Now they seemed to be finding out. The little inky imps trooped out of his cranium in such numbers that they threatened to leave it quite void and Madam Hertzer considered it incumbent upon her to see that one studied dramatic express thorn in the first. She had a barsh sion and another the violin and another wood carving and another modeling in clay, besides all of the regulation studies. She brought a great circle of friends about her, who adored ber bohemian evenings and who considered the baron one of the most interesting gentlemen they had ever met.

The baron did not consider himself interesting. He was bored with him- ing in meeting." She spoke no more,self. He wondered if time would nev Ladies' Home Journal, these men whom I have never seen?" "It is not necessary to see them in order to be at their beck and call."

The baron considered all Americans stupid, but he regarded this one as particularly so, especially when he found that his family was leagued with the perverse man to insist upon the making of the little devils. Under protest, and with frequent lamentings that be would be made ridiculous, the were drudgery, but the second week saw him tolerant, the third week found him interested and at the epd of month he was enthusiastic. The joy of work-individual, creative workwas an emotion he had only just dis-covered. And when the monetary results became appreciable be grew almost purse proud. He began to gather ideas about the propriety of women working and finally he commanded his wife to cease her money earning. With a great show of wifely submission Madam Hertzer obeyed. She rested at last, after the day's heat and burden. and a smiling German gentleman, lord of his house and dictator over his dodevils in the solitude of his study .- Exchange:

A Gentle Rebuke.

In the center of a popular coffee house main room in Italy was a large marble slab, which covered the pipes that heated the place, and the tables were arranged around this.

There was always fine music there in the evening, made by a man and his wife. She played on a stringed instrument, and after several selections, she carried around a little filigree silver basket in which she collected coins from the guests.

One night, as the music began, a man seated at one of the tables held up a gold coin. The woman smiled, and the man dropped it on the marble slab that covered the hot pipes. When she made her collection, she went last for the gold coin, but as she picked it up, she gave a cry and dropped it again, for it had become heated on the slab. The husband glared at the man, but did not sav a word.

The next evening, when the musiclans appeared, the woman's hand was bandaged, and she had some difficulty in managing her instrument. When she made her collection, she avoided the man who had played the practical joke on her, and night after night she did the same thing. In vain he offered her apologies, and other coins, but she merely bowed and smiled in unobtrusive they endeavor to be, with- passing him, and never allowed him to give her the slightest donation.

In the Plymouth congregation there was at one time a wessun who was a voice and a stiff manner of speaking. Her long drawn out, dull discourses wearied the congregation. But Mr. Beecher was patient. At last he, too, reached the limit of endurance, and one evening when she sat down, after talking nearly half an hour, he arose, and in his deep tones said slowly, "Nevertheless. The Center of the Earth.

Of late years the general view has been that the interior of the globe. though partly liquid, is for the most part solid. Some have considered that a section through the earth would show the following:

(1) An outer solid envelope, (2) a semifluid envelope, (3) a fluid envelope, (4) a smeifluid envelope, (5) a solid nucleus. No. 1 results from a reduced temperature only, No. 2 from a pressure and temperature not quite sufficlear for liquidation. The other evening a simple western, maiden at her first eastern dinner surveyed her supply of knives and forks with growing trepidation. Her common sense told her that they were hid out in the regular order in which it was intended that they should be used. but nothing in her experience had taught her which was the right end of the row to start in with. Finally, in despair, she sought help-from her next door neighbor a prominent physician:

Wanted to Warn Him.

Sir Algernon West tells this story in his "Recollections:" Ohe day the late Sir George Campbell, who had a very strident, loud, rasping voice, called on Sir Algernon, who was then secretary fto Mr. Gladstone, to talk over the land question.

After he had been in conversation about three minutes the office keeper appeared, bearing the card of an M. P. who, he said, was very anxious to see Sir Algernon. The latter said the was sorry to be engaged. In another minute he appeared with the card of a well known peer who was most desirous to have a word with him. Again the latter said he was too, busy to see him fust then. In another minute the man again came in with a huge card saying the lord mayor and sheriffs of London wanted to speak to Sir Algernon West very urgently in the next room.

Sir Algernon apologized to Sir George and went out to such great dignitaries. When he got out of the room, the office Resper startled har by saying, "There ain't nobod he - . In' I wa stigld a madman hall be st b you by researce, and I was not try in you.

Once when General Butler was in congress he rose in his place and gently insinuated that the member who was occupying the floor was transgressing the limit of debate. "Why, general." said the member in represchful tones, "you divided your time with me," "I know I did," rejoined the grim old warrior, "but I did not divide eternity with you."

But perhaps Butler's most savage retort was made in a political convention. in which a distinguished Unitarian divine, I think it was James Freeman Clarke, sat as a delegate. While the subject of candidates was being discussed this clergyman anaounced that if a certain nomination was made be would bolt it.

"Very likely," Butter blurted out. "You are good at bolling; in your religion you bolt two thards of the Trinity.

PRESENTED AT COURT.

A young woman about to be presented at court receives the fullest instructions as to her behavior. She is told how to dress; how to manage her train; how to courtesy correctly. Every incident is carefully rehearsed so that she may commit no blunder in the presence of royalty. If all this trout le is worth while for the satisfac-

more important it is that a young girl about to enter into the sacred precincts of womanhood, should be properly instructed in all that concerns a life-time of possible happiness, or possible misery. Every mother ought to see to it that her daughters are healthy and strong in a woman'v way. She ought to make them aware that any neglect on irregularity of the special functions of womanhood may result in life-long weakness?

Any mother or daughter may write concerning these delicate schneits, with the utmost confidence to Er. R.V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffaro, N. Y. Her letter will be answered free of charge with suggestions I . ath there was not a quiver of | for self-treatment at shome, by which tel wher heart was breaking.
